Ilissa,

Thank you for your email, and I'm sorry that it took me a couple of days to get back to you. I had a paper due on Tuesday I was working on all day, and you may have heard that Amelia, Bill, and Justin filed an emergency motion late yesterday that asks a court to order Harvard not to move forward with the Title IX investigation. They agreed with the points I made in my November 7 response that it is wrong and unfair for Harvard to proceed with the investigation under the circumstances—and that, given everything that's at stake for my future, it's worth asking a judge to order the school not to proceed.

But even if that hadn't happened last night, I unfortunately still wouldn't be able to meet tomorrow, because I am going to be out of town tomorrow and through the weekend. I also have an exam and a presentation next week—and that's all before the reading period begins next Thursday. And I don't know when the judge is going to rule on the motion my lawyers filed. Will ODR stay the investigation at least until she does rule on it? Between that and the exams I have coming up, I would really appreciate it if ODR would at least agree to postpone my interview. Please let me know if you'd be able to do that.

Thank you very much,
[REDACTED]
